

NEVSLETTER

That people were loath to leave the pub at Conwyd was indeed an understatement, the rain poured, the wind blew, I was dying with pneumonia, of then there was the blond Wally saw at Llangollen! However Fred literally worked the oracle with a Welsh Farmer and shortly afterwords we were all installed in fempty farm house. The Hayes Gadsby shouting team were confident that they had ousted Jack Ashcroft from their comfortable wooden floor, but Jack, wily old bird, was with Pretty, Dearden and Myself amongst the straw in the barn. Yes even Dearden appeared on this meet, even if it was to prove that his feet are still as soft and blister prone as ever!

We awoke on Saturday to the sound of rain on the roof and the H-G shouting team -(who appear to exist without sleep!). After a ferry service had shuttled all the cars to Cowarch we were literally committed. That again is an understatement, Fred Allen, another wily bird, had generously brought all the drivers back from Cowarch in HIS car, crafty what!

We walked along the road for a midday pint and to see what the weather held in store. A rapid improvement soon to tempted and we set off for the Hirnant, where the party arrived in dribs and drabs after a wet walk. I myself hurring to make a considerable deviation to check that the H-G team were alright and to sign their chit to continue to the Bwlch-y-Groes.

The evening was not without incident, our comfortable barn was visited by an irate Welsh lady who, it transpired, owned the place and did not take kindly to our being there. Pretty attired in pyjamas assured her we were respectable. She however failed to see this, and, and to objecting to being called 'madame', gave us the boot. The farmer down the valley was of a more friendly disposition and made us welcome. Sunday, in good weather, was spent in crossing over to Bwylch-X-Groes and then the Arrans to Cowarch Highlights of the meet;

The following letter has been received from Malcolm McCarthy.

As you know, I have long cherished the idea of being able once more to enjoy the comradeship of my friends in the Oread. Now, however free from the forces I must face the harsh trouth of life. Business has brought me to live in the South of England. For domestic considerations and in fairness to the club I now ask you to accept my resignation. I wish everyone well and hope that one day we may meet again in the mountains.

We do regret receiving any letter of resignation from the club especially from Malcolm McCarthy, who is a good friend of many members. He will always be welcomed if at any time he is able to climb with the club again.

Ray Handley now lives on Curried Chips.

Clive Web to Jim Kershaw - "Have you ever thaught about working abroad Jim?" -"Well I have never really thaught about working".

So far this year Cloggy has yielded (so I am informed) seven new routes. Martin Boyson and Colin Mortlock recently climbed the Pinnacle Arete to the right of Gargoyle - Pete Crewe ascended the big wall between Chimney Route and November, this was almost completed several years ago by Joe Brown. - The big groove to the right of Red Slab was climbed by Crewe.

The new guide to Cloggy is now in preparation and should make very interesting reading for those not so up to date with the big crag. I believe the XS routes outnumber the VS of which there are at least 20. I wonder which Oread will be the first to make the new guide out of date?

Although there should be a full report in the next newsletter about the Cloggy meet held at the end of June, it is worth mentioning that Eric Wallis and Wally Smith spent most of the Saturday on the West Buttress:, in very umpleasant conditions (rain and mist). They almost completed the Girdle of the west - a very fine effort indeed.

A number of Nottingham Oreads spent a good week end on Burbage. The weather was fine and warm. Eric and Wally put up a new peg route in one of the quarries. The president and family arrived on the Sunda Geoff Hayes retired quietly after fighting his way up Bynes crack VS followed by the president who on the top remarked that he thought it only Severe. LETTER TO THE EDITOR - JULY 1962 STOL SALWOLLOS

Current reports indicate that yet another climbing ground is to be closed to the climber, one that is possibly not too well known but never the less one that offers the best climbing discovered in Derbyshire for many a year. I refer to Willersley rocks at Cromford. In the last month there has been two accidents there which have come to the notice of the landowner, and has resulted in the police being There was previously no objection to asked to keep climbers away. climbing.

Willersley is a limestone crag, the top portion and indeed the larger part of the crag at the right hand end being of a 'dolomite' type, the rock is however loose in places although the main routes, following grooves and other natural lines, are fairly solid.

To climb on Willersley demands much of the climber, to climb safely on the steep rock without overloading holds requires experience that is only gained from many years of practice; to know when a piton is necessary for protection (without overpegging and spoiling climbs), whether or not a loose hold can be trusted, even the question 'is it r better to retreat', these are allpoints that come with experience.

Both the accidents at Willersley need not have hapened, in both cases the climbers were youngsters who, even if they had the gymnastic ability to scale the crag, lacked the fundamental experience necessary to climb safely. The same can be said of many of the accidents in the country today

Itis up to all of us therefore to direct the enthusiasm of the youngsters along the right channels, to see that they receive a good basic knowledge of all the techniques of climbing before branching out unto harder routes. In this way we might preserve their lives and, with luck, a few crags on which WE may climb.

HEWSLETTER- JULY 1962

We all know how great the litter problem is in Derbyshire, particularly in the area of the Gritstone Edges. The Seavenger Noot the club holds each year to clean up Gardoms and Birchens Edge becomes increasingly necessary and last year a great amount of tins ete were collected from the camp site at Froggatts farm all left by the campers - mainly Mountaincers. None of this mess was of course necessary as the farmer provides a bucket in which you can put your My chief fear is that the small mountain camp site tins. not controlled by a farmer, for example by Llyn Bochlewyd, in Glencoc by the river and by Blea Tarn Etc., The usual practice for getting rid of tins is under the nearest stone. By now most of the boulders are covered with tins instead of the tins being covered.

The answer to this problem is to carry a large polythene bag in the rucksac and carry all the rubish back in this to the nearest waste bin or even back home- if you can carry it out with you you can easily take it back, after all empty tins don't weigh much. If we all use this method and pass the message on to others we may

Hitherto the P.A. type rock-climbing boot has been very popular and there has been a need for a similar type to be produced in this country.

We now offer this newly produced boot with great confidence. It has taken, one way and another, about 3 years to perfect, but we feel that the Laboratory Tests and "User Trials have been worth while. Rock-Climbing Instructors have had a hand in the early criticisms and suggestions, and are encouraging in their high praise at the result.

The upper of the boot is of rot-proof canvas with a protective deep rubber galosh which also gives extra grip. The smooth rubber of the sole, has a maximum adhesive quality, and is reinforced with a stiffener which extends to the sides of the soles as well as the toes. A range of specially narrow-toed lasts has had to be made to give the correct shape and close fit.

Sizes range from 3 - 12.

Retail Price £3/15/- per pair. Postage on single pairs 2/3. We will be glad to send pairs on approval against Cashreturnable within 7 days in good condition, if unsuitable.

Work Done: -4 Chimneys capped. New lock fitted Coal store sorted out. Bathroom laid out (waste pipes etc.) Trees Trimmed.

Painting. Repairs to leather furniture. Cutlery polished.

New furniture installed.

Once again another working party bites the dust and there was plenty of it. The battle of the Bathroom was fought admirably by Messrs. Gardiner, Burns and Appleby, several chimney pots were lost during the siege but were swiftly capped by the bathroom party during a lull. Messrs. Hooley, Phillips and Appleby took up positions as lookouts in the surrounding trees, several limbs were lost during this time. These were quickly camouflaged with green paint by D. Appleby acting then as runner and ground support.

Food and hot stimulants were provided by the womenfolk, who also, in between mealtimes rendered first-aid to damaged furniture and polished fighting irons, did painting where needed and ferried supplies from Caernarvon.

On Saturday evening, leaving one person on guard at the hut, a small scouting party entered the nearby village and gained access to the local inn, here they found another battle raging and after a brief struggle they gained a position near the liquor store. They were in the process of sacking this when heavy drifting smoke and (local) activity forced them to withdraw to the hut. It is to their credit that they did not return empty handed. On the whole the battle was not won, the bathroom still has to be finished.

I would like to point out to members that a Yale lock has been fitted to the bog door. This was due to the using of the bog by foreign personnel. Note. If anyone is daft enough to leave the key inside the bog, walk out and lock the door, well thats it. The thing to do, is to leave the key in the lock till you come out and then return it to its place on the hook from whence it came.

I would like to thank all the old faithfuls and newcomers for the work they did at the weekend. Those present were:

L. Burns, D. Appleby, R. Phillips,
E. Phillips, B. Gardiner, P. Gardiner,
M. Hooley, C. Hooley, and Doggarnit 'Kim'.

C. Hooley. Hut Warden.

Since this report was put to print, Paul Gardiner, Chook Hooley, and Lauric Burnes spent a hard weekend finishing off the plumbing in the bathroom. The Bath and wash basin are now connected to the hot and cold water supply and can be used. All that remains now is for the walls to be rendered and the room decorated.

The working party in August should see to some of that. Cable vie angle Tarm and Saye Head. The last day was spent on Girace where we saw the Nottingham "shower and learnt that Clem Britt

Friday July 20th to August 13th 1962. All enquiries bookings Etc.. regarding the hut to P. Gardiner, Birdind, Derby. COLIN HOBDAY. SKYE - MHITSUN 1962 One has only to read the information on the back of the Scottish Mountaincoring Club guide, particularly the one for Skye, which informs you that it is printed on wet-resisting paper and bound in water proof cloth, gives you an idea what to expect. Five of us, Pat and Doug Cooke, Pat and Brian Lee, and myself, left the Friday evening before Whitsun, for Skye in glorious weather. This seen changed to rain as we crossed the border into Scotland. Travelling overnight we arrived in the early hours of the morning at Glencoc. A couple of hours sleep had been had when we were awakened by a hammering on the side of the van to see Hayes's face peering in (what a sight) He was soon joined by Margaret, Doreen, and Gordon. After cups of coffee all round we pushed on to Skye with shouts of "see you there" echoing round the glan.

At Sheil Bridge, instead of turning right for the Kyle of Lochalsh ferry, we turned left for Glenelg which gives some very sporting driving with gradients of 1 in 5 and hairpin bends in abundance. Not only is this ferry quicker than the Kyle, but the run is fare more scenic and can be recomended to any Oread going to Skye.

A quick stop for tea and scones and then on to Sligachan where we met up with the Nottingham party again. They said they were waiting for the weather forcast on the radio before setting off down Glen Sligachan, but actually I think they were waiting for the pub to open.

We set up camp at Glen Brittle, finding a party from White Hall also camping there.

Sunday was cloudy but fine as we set off for Corrie Lagen and the Sron-na-Ciche crags where we climbed Little Gully, Cioch slab and onto the Cioch, from which we had splendid views of Corrie Lagen and . 'The Crack of Doom. From the Cioch the easy traverse was taken into easy gully to enable us to reach the tops quickly as the weather was showing sign's of deteriorating. This enabled us to get good views from the top of Sgurr Sgumain 3104ft of the Cuillin Ridge. The clouds descended as we crossed over onto the top of Sgur Alasdatr 3251ft. and then we descended the great stone shoot, which was enjoyed

Monday saw the arrival of the rain and our departure for Portree and the Old Man of Storr, which is a pinnacle well over 150ft. high and 40ft. in diameter and overhangs on all sides, the rock not lending its self to climbing.

The weather was even worse on Tuesday so we left Skyc for the Lake District, camping at Stonethwaite in Borrowdale, from which we visited Shepards Crag, Sargents Crag, Eagle Crag and a walk over to Gable via Angle Tarn and Stye Head Pass. The last day was spent on Gimmer where we saw the Nottingham "shower" and learnt that Glen Brittle had been washed out the day after we left, so we had 'nt missed much.
